

The Telegraph has Col. Tracy's endorsement of his Democracy. That may be valuable to the Telegraph, but it is the devil's own compliment to orthodox Democracy.

The News is fighting the Democracy of both the Telegraph and the Statesman, as impudent a specimen of "Satan-reproving sin" as we remember to have seen. As far out of the true path as these papers have strayed, yet they are immeasurably nearer than the News ever has been, or indeed ever can be.

The Galveston News copies an item from the EXAMINER and credits it to the Waco Democrat. Well, neighbor, we are not going to quarrel with the term. The time is passed in Texas, thank God, when it is either dangerous or disgraceful to own one's self a true-blue Democrat. We sincerely wish we could return the compliment, and write Galveston Democrat, instead of News.

The conclusions arrived at by the Statesman, in his article of the 7th inst., viz: that the Southern Democrats would be driven to the support of Grant for the third term, is one of the strangest we have ever seen drawn in a Democratic paper. We think the result of the Greeley campaign has about upset that sort of tilting Democracy, and has taught the people that a clean-cut, respectable minority is far more preferable than success under a man whose Democracy does not exist at all. By the Statesman's rule the ghost of the father of the Civil Rights bill would make an acceptable standard bearer for the Democracy. It would be scarcely less objectionable than the Statesman's candidate, while Sumner and Phillips and that class of negro worshippers have planned the campaigns, Grant has fought them through to success, and now, Mr. Statesman—(Democratic?)—you are just as far from the mark as it is possible for one to be.

We publish a paragraph from a Washington special to the Chicago Tribune, in another column, which indicates that should the House pass the Iniquitous Civil Rights bill, Grant will veto it. We have not a doubt of his reputed purpose to do so. We cannot believe that its passage was ever seriously contemplated by the House, and are inclined to think that the action of the Senate was only a cheap posthumous compliment to the dead apostle of negro equality. But should the House pass the bill, Grant will have an opportunity to place himself on the record—at the close of a long, and let us say, more than ordinarily successful official career—as opposed to the crowning phrenzy of sectional enthusiasm, embodied in this wicked attempt to foist upon the negro, a social status, which he neither desires or is fitted for.

One reason why Coke's administration does not suit either the News or the Statesman is that the Galveston and Austin rings haven't found in him those lamb-like qualities that they supposed he possessed, and which would have enabled them not only to lead him in the direction of an accommodating treasury, but into political license, dangerous to the permanency of Democratic institutions in Texas. Under which state of things they hoped, vulture-like, to gorge themselves upon the carcass of the dead hopes of the manhood and virtue of the State. The Shylocks in Austin, who have grown rich on the margins between what they give, and get, for State warrants, are forever opposed to any man, or any influence that breaks up that "little game." Ah, the Austin Ring Public has at last found an ass, who will not bend to their money-getting schemes!

Delegates from many of the subordinate Granges of Colorado lately held a meeting in the office of the Colorado Farmer, at Denver, to consider the matter of a grand Fourth of July celebration. A committee of arrangements was appointed, and R. Q. Tenney, Master of the State Grange, was invited to deliver an oration on the occasion. There will doubtless be a grand time among the thriving Patrons of Colorado. By the way, are not the Granges generally going to hold their Fourth of July picnics and celebrations?

THE COMING TOGETHER OF THE STATE GRANGE.

On the third Tuesday of August this large, influential and representative body of the intelligent farmers of Texas will assemble in this city, to consider questions of immense importance to themselves and the State. The suggestion will not be considered premature, that they at once commence preparations for that meeting. Let the individual as well as Council Granges go at once to the business of examining all questions that are likely to come up for discussion at that time, so that the time of the meeting will not be consumed in these preliminary discussions. The proper officers should be employed constantly in procuring information in regard to the present crop, as well as considering questions which are to affect that which will be planted the coming fall. We have frequently alluded to this subject, and resume it, in view of its great importance to the order, even at the risk of being considered tiresome, or over anxious. Questions of very grave importance to the perpetuity and efficiency of the Order will be discussed, these all requiring much time for careful preparation. The question of the adaptation of the Order to the genius and wants of Texas farmers will claim attention, and the only means by which a correct conclusion, on this point, can be arrived at, is by careful observation. We are perfectly convinced that nothing has occurred in the history of agriculture in our State, since its earliest settlement, that bears any comparison to this, in importance. Then let the men who are to guide this great movement to ultimate success lag not behind their fellows, rather let them rise to a level with their great mission. Our Order has already roused rich and powerful opposition. There are those observing its every action, hungry for a mistake or a blunder, through which to attack it. Let us be careful not to furnish it. We are confident that the mission of the Order will succeed, finally, but it can only do this by eternal vigilance and determined effort. It must labor to bind its votaries firmly to its principles, and also to place its claims for respectful consideration, fairly before other classes who are not eligible to membership in the organization.

Its mission is truly a beneficent one. Peace, and all the blessings that come in her train. Intelligence, morality and charity. Is not this a field in which the proudest in our land may labor, and the certainty of reward sweetens the toil. Come up to our August meeting, Patrons of Husbandry, with these sentiments uppermost, and the result of your meeting will not, cannot be doubtful.

As regards the imputation made by the Advance of having "gone back" on T. N. we respectfully but very emphatically deny the soft impeachment. We stated simply that T. N. as correspondent of this paper is himself alone responsible for what he writes. We did not wish to be understood as entering a disclaimer, but simply as placing the responsibility where it of right belongs, with a correspondent, who writes in the light of facts, of which we, at this distance, are not supposed to be fully apprised, and of which, manifestly, the erudite Advance knows, to put it mildly, not very much more.

As regards T. N., in general, he may not hit the mark precisely every time, (Does the Advance?) but he is striking in the right direction; and in seeking to effect a reduction in charges on cotton at Galveston, he will be sustained by the honest, hard-fisted farmers of Texas, however ridiculed by others, and notably the Advance. T. N. has our permission to proceed.

Yesterday a prominent member of the House called at the Executive Mansion, and was asked by the President whether the House would pass the Civil Rights bill. "Yes, I think so. You wish it passed, don't you?" was the answer. "Yes," responded Grant, grimly. "I want you to pass it, so that I can veto it."

Master Allen, of Missouri, urges upon Patrons the necessity of keeping up Grange work during the busy season. "Continued vigilance," he says, "is the price of success, and if Patrons begin to stay away they will certainly inaugurate a disintegration that will be attended with ruinous consequences." Thirty Missouri Granges have already contributed $1000 for the relief of distressed Patrons in Louisiana.

Jefferson Davis sailed from Liverpool on the 5th inst., for New York in the steamship Adriatic.

The Grand Duke Alexis took back to Russia, a remembrance of his visit to London, in the shape of an English bulldog, which he was compelled to lead on board the vessel himself, the Russian sailors not liking the appearance of the animal.

Mr. A. Phillips, of New Orleans, who fought a duel with and killed Mr. A. Bienvenue, of the same city, some weeks ago, at Bay St. Louis, has been arrested upon a requisition from Gov. Ames, of Mississippi. He will be tried for murder.

The Granges of Iowa county, Iowa, have erected at Marengo, the county seat, an elevator capable of holding 25,000 bushels. At a meeting of these Granges at Genoa Bluffs, lately, resolutions were passed that they would make purchases from, and deal with those first who offer the best and lowest priced articles, through the proper agencies; and that they deem it absolutely necessary that all Granges should unite and concentrate their purchases, as far as possible, so as to encourage those who offer the order acceptable prices to continue their dealings with them.

The House went to the Speaker's table and disposed of such ceteras as were not objected to. Among the latter are the Senate Civil Rights bill, and three bills to relieve political disabilities are left on the Speaker's table and cannot be moved without a two-thirds vote, which, ordinarily, can only be taken on Mondays. During the last ten days of the session, however, a motion to suspend the rules by a two-thirds vote, which at the same time will pass the bill, is always in order.

The Committee agreed to report a bill to the Senate, with sundry amendments, among which is one proposing to send back to the commissioners the claim of Mr. Bayley, of Louisiana, on the ground that he sold certain cotton to the Confederate Government, and thereby committed an act of disloyalty, which should negative any and all proofs of loyalty to the United States, upon which the Commissioner based his claim.

There is something that touches the heart in the last movements of a dog that died at Lansingburg, N. Y., the other day, at the age of twenty-four years. The old fellow had hardly stirred from his rug for some days; he arose, stiffly, crawled with difficulty up stairs, visited every room in the house and seemed to bid a last farewell to all familiar objects, came back to his master's feet and died without a struggle.

Gen. Sheridan has sent to Washington letters and reports from General Stanley and Custer, which show that the Sioux and others at the Cheyenne agency are beyond the control of the agent. They have taken the war-path in considerable numbers. With regard to the manner of dealing with the Indians, General Stanley says to General Custer: "They are not likely to be amenable to soft words, and you had better use powder and ball at once." The commanding officer at Fort Rice had been notified to be on the lookout for them.
